ICRA
Catalan Institute for Water Research

Field:
Sciences

Keywords:
Climate change, Green economy, Pollutants, Water quality

Research into the water cycle and its management

The importance of water as a basic resource and the wide range of problems related to it have led to the creation of this organisation whose purpose is research in all fields related to water, with particular focus on those concerned with the rational use of water and the effects of human activity on water resources.

The ICRA hopes to become a benchmark institution for all the public and private bodies working with water and a meeting point between the research it conducts and society.